

It was under control, then just like before...

racing heartbeat, pounding pulse,
throbbing chest.

Your same frustrating struggle with A-Fib is back.

Or is it?

Managing atrial fibrillation (A-Fib) can be non-stop frustration. Especially if medicine had your racing heartbeat under control for months or years and now — suddenly — it's back. Those sleepless nights, stressful days, and unpredictable symptoms can change your life. But so can the right specialist.

Experts at St. Mary Medical Center have a full range of breakthroughs that can bring new hope to you. Highly specialized electrophysiologists and cardiologists work as a team using the latest anti-arrhythmic drugs, cardioversion, and advanced catheter and surgical techniques. These experienced, leading experts also were the region's first to treat A-Fib with catheter ablation. In fact, their excellent results draw other doctors to them for training. A-Fib is a challenge. See how St. Mary specialists can change it for you.
